

EVER IN ROOM
OF MRS. BURNETT,
HUMPHREYS SAYS
Co-respondent in Divorce Suit
Contradicts Detective's
Testimony.

SAW HER EVERY WEEK.
Acted as Messenger Between
Defendant and Her Mother-in-Law.

Arthur G. Humphreys, the co-respondent named by his former chum, "Tom" Burnett, in his suit for absolute divorce from Belle Goldberg Burnett, resumed the witness stand in the trial today, his testimony having been interrupted abruptly Friday by the sudden illness of the foreman of the jury.

George Sweeney, a State detective, testified that in the summer of 1935 at West End, Long Branch, he noted a bifurcation between a couple who he learned afterward, were Mrs. Burnett and young Humphreys.

"Tell the jury about your going to West End, Long Branch, in 1935," began Mr. Wing, counsel for Mrs. Burnett, when Humphreys took the stand. "On June 7, 1935, I took Mrs. Belle Burnett down to Long Branch. She occupied accommodations at the Howland House, the proprietor of which, Mr. Blackman, I saw. I remained at the same house one night, returning to the city next day."

"During the summer of 1935," Humphreys continued, "I ran down to West End almost every Saturday night, staying over until Monday, and once staying until Thursday. Mr. Blackman was also on all but two of these occasions. My room was up one flight. Mrs. Burnett occupied a room on the third floor all summer."

"I was never in Mrs. Burnett's room, nor was she ever in mine."

"Sweeney testified that you entered a room on the second floor with Mrs. Burnett and remained there for several days with the door closed to the house."

"I was never alone in any room with Mrs. Burnett. It is not true, I never saw Sweeney until I saw him here in court."

Their Journeys Together.

Under Mr. Keating's cross-examination, Humphreys told how, on the morning from Long Branch, Conn., where he went to his father's home, in July he went back down to Bayshore. She went to the Howland House, while he, a friend, he hired a horse phaeton to take him to the beach and drove her to the beach.

"She was requested to leave the Howland House because of her relations with you," he testified.

"I was interested in her."

"I went to see her on an average of three times a week, because you were interested."

Humphreys said that his friendship for the family was so strong that on the occasion when "Tom" Burnett was arrested he set up with him several nights.

BALLINGTON BOOTH
SENDS SYMPATHY TO SICK FATHER

Alludes to Differences Between Them in Message Sent to Chicago.

When news reached him of his father's illness in Chicago Gen. Ballington Booth, of the Volunteers of America, sent the following message from the Volunteers' headquarters in its new building, No. 21 West Twenty-eighth street, this morning:

"Gen. William Booth, care of Col. G. A. Kirby, No. 24 Ashland Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.—Learning from the New York press of your presence and illness in Chicago I desire, apart from an official difference, to express my deep sympathy."

BALLINGTON BOOTH.

Ballington Booth was questioned as to persistent rumors that there was to be effected a reconciliation between himself and his father, and an amalgamation of the Volunteers with the Salvation Army, and replied:

"The movements are distinct in government, principle, organization and policy. As such, amalgamation could not be taken for a moment into consideration."

Further, the head of the Volunteers declared he had nothing more to say in amplification.

The condition of Gen. William Booth of the Salvation Army, remains practically unchanged, but after a consultation of several physicians Dr. Oscar Cliff announced today that unless unexpected complications arise the General would be able to continue his trip in about a week.

On account of his advanced age, pre-arranged accommodations at the Howland House, the proprietor of which, Mr. Blackman, I saw. I remained at the same house one night, returning to the city next day."

The General remained in bed at the home of G. A. Kirby, commander of the Chicago branch of the army.

NINE AIRSHIPS READY TO START ON LONG FLIGHT

again, as the rules prohibit the employment of any outside help in that contingency.

No ballast may be taken on after the balloons leave the ground at Forest Park. Each balloon will be equipped with an anchor or a rip cord panel. In the matter of lighting a balloon, the rules allow the contestants to throw overboard everything they are carrying and even to cut the basket away and cling to the ropes.

The work of filling the balloons began at 8 o'clock this morning. All were filled from the same pipe at the same time, and, of course, with the same grade of gas. The inflation enclosure is a fifteen-acre tract protected by a high iron fence. At one end is a grand stand capable of accommodating 10,000 invited guests of the Aero Club of St. Louis.

Troops on Guard.

Troops from Jefferson Barracks have been assigned to duty as guards to keep the crowd from overstepping the enclosure. Smoking in the vicinity of the balloons has been prohibited. Every precaution has been taken against accident or mishap and the visiting aeronauts are enthusiastic over the way they and their balloons have been treated.

The foreign aeronauts have been supplied with all the information concerning air currents and the topography of the country over which the balloons are likely to pass that the Weather Bureau and the United States Signal Corps has gathered.

American the Favorite.

The balloon United States, which is assigned to Major Henry B. Hershey, is the same in which Lieut. Lahm, U. S. A., established the long distance record of 402 miles from France across the English Channel and into England last year. Major Hershey was Lieut. Lahm's assistant on that occasion.

The experience of the navigator and the quality of the balloon combine to make this entrant the favorite. The French aeronauts are exceedingly confident, and one of their balloons, the Anjou, has a gas capacity exceeding that of the largest of the others by 250 cubic feet.
